

I am vehemently and categorically opposed to the FCC's recent decision to cut back on the restrictions regarding media cross-ownership within the same market. We - the public, who deserve better - have seen the baneful effects of the concentration of media power in the individual fields - TV broadcast, radio, print - and we have lost diversity of voices to a uniform expression of corporate interest as a result. Those who already have the least say in society are the ones most directly hurt by the FCC's continuing mania for de-regulation.

The FCC has done enough damage to the potential for a well-informed citizenry. Please restrain yourselves from doing even more, as is evidently your plan.

Thank you.
